INTESA SANPAOLO: MARCO BOLGIANI, HEAD OF THE INTERNATIONAL SUBSIDIARY BANKS DIVISION, LEAVES THE GROUP

Milan, Turin, 8th October 2013 - Marco Bolgiani, head of the International Subsidiary Banks Division at Intesa Sanpaolo, leaves the Group to pursue new professional ventures.

Mr Bolgiani arrived at Intesa Sanpaolo a year ago, assuming responsibility for the International Subsidiary Banks Division. Previously, he held senior positions at UniCredit, particularly in the private banking and global transaction banking sectors. Mr Bolgiani started his banking career at Citibank, and later served as CEO of Eptaconsors.

Carlo Messina, CEO of Intesa Sanpaolo, commented: “I thank Marco Bolgiani for the deep commitment, the results achieved and the passion with which he managed the International Subsidiary Banks Division, in a period that has been extremely full of activities and events for both the Group and for the Division itself. All of us have come to appreciate his personal and professional qualities and we express our best wishes to him for success in his new endeavours”.
